Paris-based indie folk artist Côme Laurans releases City Lights, a warm, hopeful single built around a voice-first production that keeps the intimacy of the writing at its centre while letting the arrangement open up around it.

City Lights is a song about a guardian angel — the presence that stays close when everything else goes quiet. Its chorus turns a private reassurance into something closer to a promise: someone who holds your hand in the dark and leads the way.

"I'm invincible when she's close by — she's my guardian angel in disguise."

The single follows Road Trip, a September 2026 collaboration with IMAE, and the 2025 debut album Undergoing Renovation — a catalogue built on the same instinct: keep the writing close, and let the production serve the voice rather than crowd it.
